Read the story and then answer questions 15-20 about the story.

Anna lives in a large town called Riverton. The population of her town is 8,950 people. She likes living there because there is a cinema, a public swimming pool and a beautiful zoo to visit. She works as an accountant in a factory there. When her cousin Joe comes to visit her, he is surprised by all the traffic noise and the busy crossroads. He worries that the large town is too dangerous for Anna.

Joe likes living in the country. He lives on a big farm with chickens, pigs, and horses. He enjoys the peace and quiet. He invites Anna to visit him, but she feels bored at the farm. She doesn't like to pick fruit or ride horses. She is afraid of the honey bees that buzz around the fields. She prefers to go back to her small flat in Riverton.

Even though these two cousins have different ideas, they get along with each other very well. So Joe's parents asked Anna, Joe, and all of the family to come to their beach house for a family party next week. That way the aunts, uncles, cousins and other relatives can spend time together. The beach house is between Riverton and
